

Sartori Foods wins 4 medals at the World Cheese Championship.

PLYMOUTH, Wis. (November 13, 2008) -- Sartori Foods is proud to announce that it has won 4 medals in the 27th Biennial World Championship Cheese Contest just completed in Madison, Wisconsin. The contest draws entrants from around the globe and is the largest cheese and butter competition in the world.

In the flavored hard cheese category, Sartori Foods won a gold medal for Sartori Reserve® Rosemary and Olive Oil Rubbed Asiago, a silver medal for Sartori Reserve® Black Pepper Bella, and a 4th place for Sartori Reserve® Basil & Olive Oil rubbed Asiago. This is a new category for Sartori, and the winning products will be available for sale later this summer.

Sartori Reserve SarVecchio® Parmesan continued its award winning tradition, earning a silver medal in the Parmesan category. Sartori Grated SarVecchio® Parmesan also won a silver medal in the open class grated cheese category.

“To be awarded 4 medals in an international cheese contest is very gratifying,” said Jim Sartori, President of Sartori Foods. “It’s great to see the dedication and hard work of our cheesemakers recognized in the international arena. We are especially pleased to see 3 of our new cheeses honored. Over the past few years, we have been investing more heavily in innovation and it’s great to see that investment is starting to pay off. We look forward to new consumers discovering the award winning taste of Sartori Reserve cheese.”

The first World Championship Cheese Contest was held in 1957 and is open to all cheesemakers and buttermakers in the world. The contest was judged by 22 international judges and medals were awarded in 77 categories.

About Sartori Foods

Sartori Foods is a privately held manufacturer with more than 68 years of experience manufacturing and marketing premium Italian, Blue-veined, Intensified, Hispanic and Specialty Cheese along with unique, customized flavor systems. Sartori Foods assists foodservice, industrial and retail customers with creative, culinary solutions and innovative new products to leverage their success in the marketplace. Visit www.sartorifoods.com for more information.

CONTACT:

Kristin Huston

800-558-5888

kuston@sartorifoods.com